

The Instituto de Estudos Medievais and the Instituto de História da Arte of the Faculdade de Ciências Sociais e Humanas of Universidade Nova de Lisboa, in conjunction with the Centro de Investigação e Estudos em Belas Artes of the Faculdade de Belas Artes of Universidade de Lisboa, are organizing the International Colloquium Interventions in Memory. Modern Era Restorations of Medieval Funerary Monuments (15th-20th centuries), which will take place on 25-26 September 2019, at the Faculdade de Belas Arts of Lisbon (former Convent of St Francis of Lisbon).

The Colloquium will focus on interventions made in relation to certain medieval funerary projects during the modern era, assessing the impact of those actions both on the materiality of tombs and on the interpretations they have prompted. This analysis may include interventions of different kinds, from restorations to dislocations/decontextualizations. The full text of presentation of the congress can be found in the Portuguese presentation.

The Colloquium, which will bring together, by invitation, national and international specialists, chosen for the quality of their work and for having undertaken research relevant to the subject of the event (see Presentation), will also include a Posters Session, through a Call for Posters [view file in the Portuguese presentation], whereby the meeting is opened to a select group of participants who will join the panels of invited speakers

The proposals must be sent by May 15, 2019.
